

Learn through conversations and film.

Mango's Ph.D-created courses train your patrons to think critically in a new language, which conditions their busy minds to retain what they've learned. When it comes to the language-learning content your patrons will encounter, we keep it real. They'll learn from conversations between native speakers in over 70 world languages or from our culture-packed films they might see in theaters in the country where their new language is spoken.
